

Manual:Extension/Emoticons

A quality version of this page, approved on 29 July 2020, was based off this revision.

Emoticons are converted to small smiley images in the Reading view. BlueSpice has a list of emoticons, or smilies, coming from chat jargon. These can enhance communication by expressing things like irony, for example. If a user adds a smiley to an article, this is transformed into an image.

Contents

1 Using emoticons	2
2 Tips	2
3 Related info	2

Using emoticons

The following sequences of symbols are transformed into emoticons. Here is the list of BlueSpice smilies where you see the sequence of symbols, then the name of the image, then the image and a short description:

```
:-( sad.png sad
:| neutral.png neutral, sceptical
:@ angry.png angry, annoyed
;-) wink.png winking, ironic
:-D smile-big.png laughing
:-/ thinking.png thinking
:-X shut-mouth.png sealed lips
:'( crying.png crying
:-O shock.png shocked, surprised
:-S confused.png undecided, confused
:lol: laugh.png laughing
8-) glasses-cool.png cool, sunglasses
(:| yawn.png yawning
:good:good.png good, thumbs up
:bad: bad.png bad, thumbs down
:-[ embarrassed.png embarrassed, blushing
[-X shame.png ashamed
```

Tips

If a user adds an emoticon to a page, this is transformed into a small image.

Note: Emoticons cannot be used directly at the start of a line! This could otherwise lead to conflicts with other wiki markup e.g. indents or lists which start with : or ;. Therefore, always leave a space before an emoticon.

Related info

- Reference:BlueSpiceEmoticons